I have noticed several calls on me through the Cheatham County Plaindealer, to become a candidate to represent the people in the counties of Dickson, Houston and Cheatham, in the lower House of the next Legislature, I will answer through the same medium. I will consent to become a candidate if the good citizens of Dickson and Houston counties will give the same kind expression of their will that a good portion of the citizens of my county have. If elected I will faithfully and honestly discharge the duties intrusted to me. G. W. McQuary.

My idea is one or two schools, located centrally and taught ten months in the year, would number half that time, I know that farmers contend that they cannot spare their children only a part of the year; but it would be better for them to send some of their children a year or two and then the others, and I feel sure their improvement would be greater, nor would the schools be so crowded or the attendance so irregular as has been the case when the schools have been taught but a few months at a

Now I believe that the great evils attending our Free schools (in the country) is in the shortness of the terms, the crowded state of the schools and the variety of the text books. Now what is the remedy for these evils? I would like to hear from some experienced and wiser head than mine. I suggest that we have fewer schools-just as many as you find will enable you to carry on continuously-let them be graded if possible, if not select good teachers who will feel and take an interest in correcting the evils and aid in building up this system of RUSTICUS.
